

Cristine Blanco

Born and raised in the Bay Area, Cristine Blanco is an interdisciplinary artist who creates painting, sculpture, video and installation. Working through a year of isolation and grief, Blanco processes and makes sense of a constantly evolving world by documenting personal and global changes. Her works take identity, environmental justice, the precarity of resources, and familial story as her starting point. Inspired by her grandmother's home in the Philippines, she explores survival in a time of crisis and considers how human connectivity and adaptation are essential to recovery and transformation.
